

OUT NOW

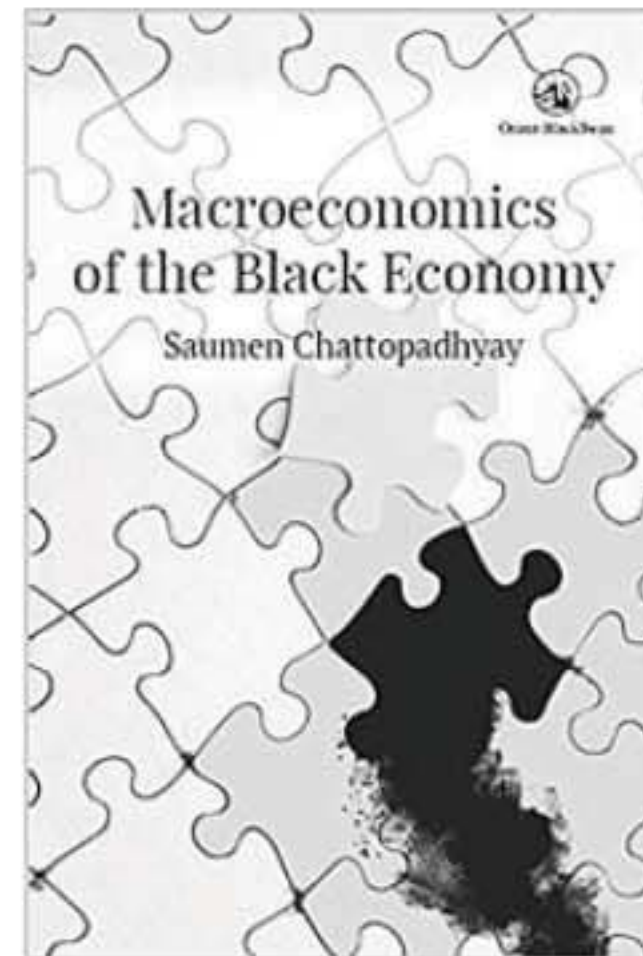

NOT QUITE, NOT WHITE: LOSING AND FINDING RACE IN AMERICA

White people are not asked to identify their origins in the way Latinos and Asians are expected to. An executive editor at Harvard University Press, who emigrated to America at age 12, examines what it means to be American in this memoir.

Sharmila Sen

Penguin

₹599, 191 pages

MACROECONOMICS OF THE BLACK ECONOMY

Do we know how black money is related to the black economy and what it means if this shadow economy were reported? A JNU professor decodes some of the lesser discussed aspects of black money.

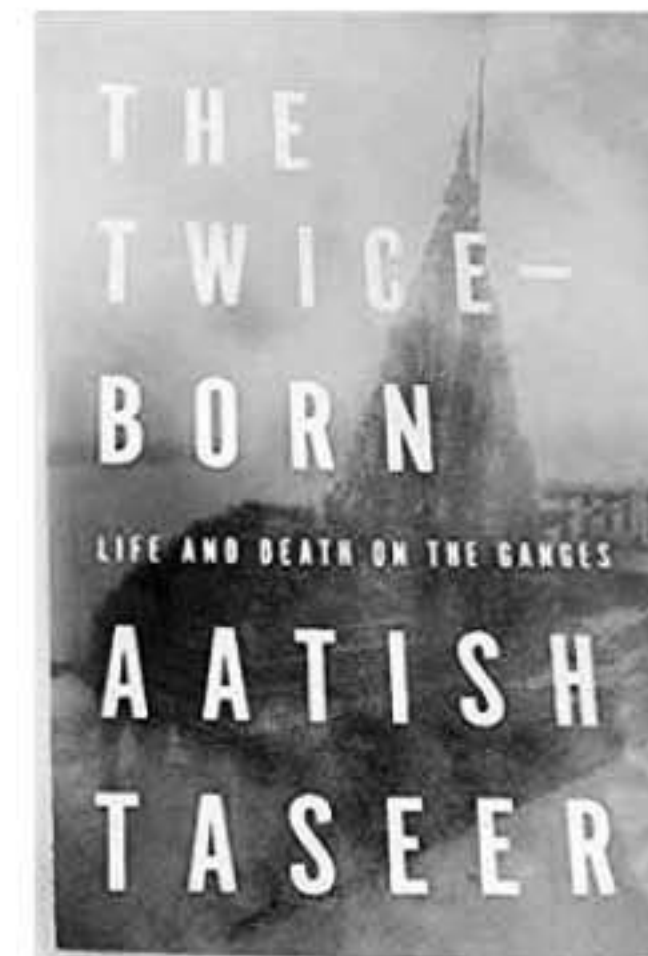

Saumen

Chattopadhyay

Orient Blackswan

₹799, 276 pages

FORTHCOMING

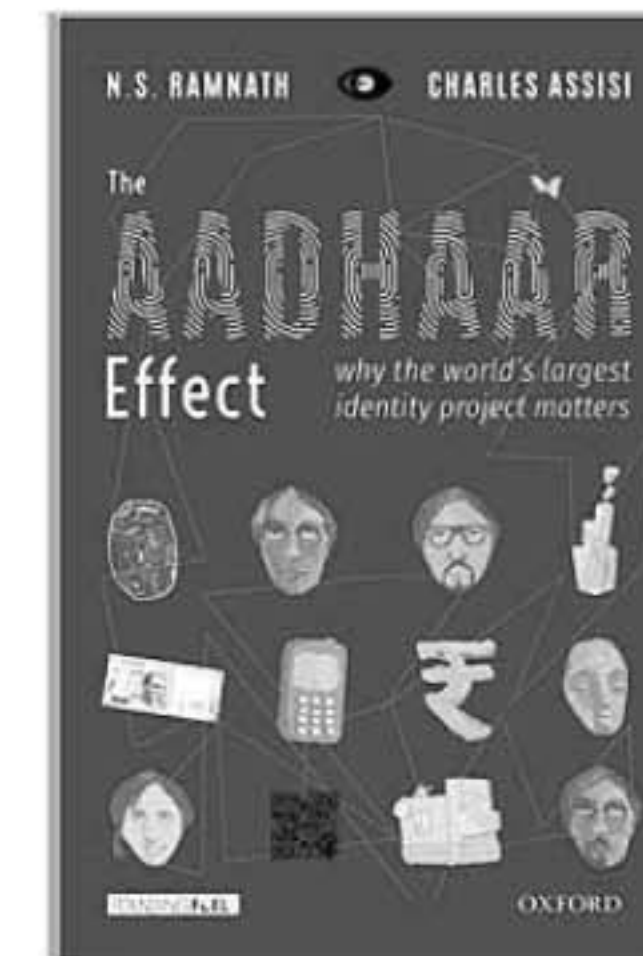

THE TWICE-BORN: LIFE AND DEATH ON THE GANGES

The westernised child of an Indian journalist and Pakistani politician leaves his Manhattan apartment in search of Brahmins to understand the roots of his own alienation. Due October 22.

Aatish Taseer

HarperCollins

₹599, 256 pages

THE AADHAAR EFFECT: WHY THE WORLD'S LARGEST IDENTITY PROJECT MATTERS

Two former journalists trace the development of one of the world's largest biometric identification system that has attracted admirers and critics in almost equal measure. Due out mid-October.

N S Ramnath &

Charles Assisi

OUP

₹595, 328 pages